

IODÉ

After graduating in industrial computing followed by 5 years of working in that field, he decided it was time to take a break. He travelled to look for a new purpose and the true meaning of his life. During his trip, he learned English and reconnected with music, a passion he had set aside during all these years. Then aged 27, he taught himself to play the guitar and quickly began to write and compose his own music and songs on the hot sands of Australia. Back in France, he started several projects of which one was about shaping the music that was vibrating in his heart and soul. So he taught himself the arts of recording and mixing, with the goal to one day share his creativity and newly discovered talent with others.

3 years later, in 2019, IODÉ, his solo project starts to take shape. The Folk compositions, as melancholic as they are expressive, evolve and are refined through the small concerts he gives. Only 2 years after IODÉ was formed, he composed the arrangements for 10 of his songs to record his first album "Some of Them", which will be released in October 2022.

In his texts, IODÉ likes to leave room for interpretation. The themes covered are varied but have as a common denominator feelings and human relationships. He draws inspiration from artists such as Angus Stone, Nick Mulvey, Patrick Watson, Rhye, Ben Howard, Bon Iver, Eddy Vedder and many more...
